SUGGESTS THE TORCH.

Negro Preacher's Inflammatory Appeal Endorsed by His Hearers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Negroes who crowded Quinn chapel yesterday rose in a body to their feet in endorsement of an impassioned declaration by Rev. J. M. Townsend, the pastor. He had read to the audience from a morning newspaper clippings giving an account of the torturing of Neal Smith at Chattanooga. Then he said: "This must stop in a Christian land. At this moment men of the cloth are protesting to the heavens, and they are united in recommending what I am going to say. If the law is not allowed to take its course concerning our men involved in crime, the torch must be applied to those cities where the outrages occur." The audience's spontaneous endorsement confused Mr. Townsend and he remained silent. In a moment the stillness was broken by a voice which said: "We rise to endorse what you have said." The audience was then dismissed, but the sentiment had aroused earnest conversation.

ALTGELD'S ATTITUDE.

Will Use Every Effort to Prevent the Big Fight in Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 7.—Governor Altgeld was asked what course he would take in case an attempt were made to pull off the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight on Henry island, in the Illinois river. "I do not know of any projected prize fight, but if it is on Illinois soil we will do all in our power to prevent any prize fight taking place here. The enforcement of the law rests primarily with the local authorities, but if it becomes necessary for the state to take a hand you may say that I will use every effort to prevent the fight."

DANGEROUS WORK.

Heavy Blasting for a Trolley Road Causes Much Damage.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Owing to the heavy blasting in the gorge where the roadbed of the new trolley line is being built, much property near by has been destroyed. Yesterday afternoon a special heavy charge of nitro-glycerine was used, and several persons came near being killed by flying rock. A dozen terrific explosions occurred yesterday afternoon. Large pieces of rock, weighing from forty to fifty pounds, were thrown a distance of more than three hundred feet and descended on the railway suspension bridge and over the passenger yards of the Grand Trunk railway and the tracks of the Niagara Falls park and river railway. One large rock crashed through the roof of the custom office and was buried in the ground under the office, narrowly missing a man who was in the office. Residents along the Canadian bank have been compelled to move out of their homes. Governor Morton's attention was called to the situation, and blasting on the gigantic scale on which it was being carried on ceased for several weeks. Another appeal will be made to United States and state authorities.

ELECTRICITY BEATS STEAM.

Enormous Drawing Power of a New Locomotive.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 7.—The electric locomotive used in hauling freight trains through the Belt line tunnel of the Baltimore & Ohio road demonstrated yesterday that its drawing power far exceeds the expectations of its builders. Forty-four loaded freight cars and the three steam locomotives, not working, which had been used to haul the heavy train on the surface, were coupled to the electric at the tunnel entrance, and pulled up the heavy grade of the tunnel, a speed of twelve miles an hour being developed. The total weight of the train was nineteen hundred tons. The draw-bar pull exerted in starting this unusually heavy load was more than sixty thousand pounds, and throughout the trip more than forty thousand pounds. Baltimore & Ohio officials claim that no steam locomotive has ever approached this record.

Sunk Through a Misunderstanding of Signals.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 7.—Through a misunderstanding of signals, schooners Itasca and Mary were sunk in a collision with steamer Parks Foster, at the southeast bend Saturday night. The crews of both vessels were saved.

Large Gains in British Trade.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The returns issued by the board of trade for September show an increase in imports of £378,000 and an increase in exports of £1,863,000, as compared with those for the corresponding month of last year.

Bicyclist Coburn at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 7.—Coburn, the bicyclist, reached this city at 3:02 o'clock this morning and made a stop of twenty minutes. His rear wheel had been sprung, but was repaired in the time allowed for the stop. He left here, with C. C. McGregor as pace maker, for Springfield.

ARMIES IN SIGHT OF THE CAPITAL.

Madagascans Disposed to Treat with the French for Peace.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—A despatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Antananarivo says that September 25 a native mob made a raid upon the British cemetery at the Hova capital and broke open a number of coffins, mutilating the bodies contained therein. The mob also made an attack upon the French observatory, which they destroyed, and for a time menaced the destruction of the house of the French resident. The two armies are now in sight of the capital and the firing incident to their skirmishes can be plainly heard. Native soldiers are flocking into the town and re-inforcements are being rapidly sent to the front. A number of prominent Hovas have left the city upon what is supposed to be a diplomatic mission, and it is the general supposition that their object is to treat with the French representatives, with a view of arranging a cessation of hostilities.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A despatch from Majunga records the movements of the French troops to September 25, when they were at Baboy, twenty-two miles from Antananarivo. It is assumed that the latter place was captured September 30.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Advices from Antananarivo, the capital of Madagascar, under date of September 22, are to the effect that Queen Ranavalona has issued a proclamation accusing her army of cowardice. Her Majesty declares that she will leave neither the capital nor the field to the French. Foreigners are unable to leave the city.

The Record of Deaths.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 7.—John Nutter, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this city, died yesterday, aged eighty-one years. He was the oldest Free Mason in Portsmouth, having joined St. John's Lodge May 1, 1839. He had taken all the Scottish Rite degrees up to and including the thirty-second, and was a Sir Knight of DeWitt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templar. He leaves a wife and one child.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Rev. Stewart Russell, a theologian, author of "Parousia," died in this city Saturday.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Miss Ada Cavendish, the actress, died here today.

Spain Still Sending Re-inforcements to Cuba.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—The Nacional claims to have official information that twenty-five battalions will shortly be sent to Cuba. The government, it says, has been waiting for the troops of the 1895 class to join the colors, in order to send them to Havana.

Viceroy of Nankin Refuses to Receive a British Admiral.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7.—The viceroy of Nankin has declined to receive Vice Admiral Fuller, pleading illness. The British warships have left Nankin.

Winsted Town Election Conceded to Republicans.

WINSTED, Conn., Oct. 7.—At noon the Democrats conceded the election of the Republicans by one hundred majority. There is a bitter fight over the liquor question.

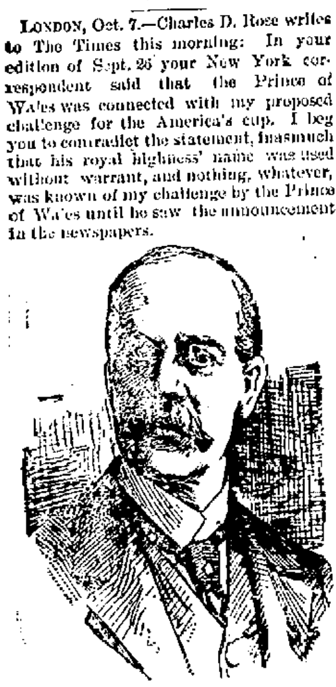
Comment From Abroad Concerning the Cup.

English Athletes Again Outdone by Yale.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Charles D. Rose writes to The Times this morning: In your edition of Sept. 26 your New York correspondent said that the Prince of Wales was connected with my proposed challenge for the America's cup. I beg you to contradict the statement, inasmuch that his royal highness' name was used without warrant, and nothing, whatever, was known of my challenge by the Prince of Wales until he saw the announcement in the newspapers.



CHARLES DAY ROSE.

The Times this morning prints a two-column article giving a history of the difficulties that have arisen between the challenger and the challenged since the cup was won. It reprints the deeds of gift of 1857, 1882 and 1887, and in an editorial on this subject says: The lawyers will peruse the so-called deeds with wonder not wholly free from amazement. They will be perplexed at the two documents being described as deeds at all. The general public will wonder why, if everybody wants a race on fair terms, it cannot be settled somehow or other.

The Times proceeds further to say: We have not the temerity to try to define the rights or duties of the trustees under the deed of 1857. This is a task that might tax the powers of a commodore and a judge of the chancery division sitting together. But it is pretty clear to the layman that the provisions of the document give considerable advantage to the challenged side.

If the next race for the America's cup does not come off under satisfactory conditions, it will be very hard to persuade him that all of the blame or much of it attaches to the terms of the trust deed.

ELEVEN TO THREE.

How the Points Stood in the Contest Between Yale and Cambridge.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Once more the Englishmen had to yield to the better brawn and muscle of Americans at Manhattan field. Two weeks ago the representatives of the London Athletic club were whitewashed by the representatives of the New York Athletic club in a program of 11 events. Some of the men who contested in the waterloo of a fortnight ago were again in evidence Saturday.

The following table of winners tells in the briefest possible space the result of the competitions in track and field sports:

100-yard dash—W. M. Richards. Time 10 1-5s.

120-yard hurdle—E. H. Cady. Time 16s.

200-yard run—W. M. Richards. Time 32 2-5s.

Putting 16-pound shot—W. O. Hickok. Distance 42ft. 6in.

Running high jump—J. H. Thompson, Jr. Height 5ft. 8¾in.

Running broad jump—L. P. Sheldon. Distance 21ft. 4½in.

Throwing 16-pound hammer—W. O. Hickok. Distance 130ft. 7in.

120-yard hurdle race, on turf—G. B. Hatch. Time 16s.

One-half mile run—F. S. Horan. Time 2m. 2-5s.

One-mile run—W. E. Lutyens. Time 4m. 35 3-5s.

Quarter-mile run—C. H. Lewin. Time 49 4-5s.

It will be seen by the above that Yale won eight out of the 11 events.

Lewis, the square-shouldered Cambridge runner, after one of the most exciting finishes ever seen on an athletic field, won the 440 yards run, beating Richards of Yale by a scant six inches. Horan, the cadaverous looking middle distance man, made a show of his opponents in the half mile, and Lutyens, the spectacled student of Sydney college, had things all his own way in the mile run. These were Cambridge's only victories.

It was the first international university competition in track and field sports ever held in this country, with the Cambridge team representing old England and Yale upholding the honors of America.

That Yale proved faithful to her trust was fully demonstrated by the marked superiority of her men in the majority of events, and by winning so handsomely no room was left for doubt or bickering.

Merit Recognized.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The Graphic says this morning of the Yale-Cambridge contest at New York on Saturday: America has taken the conceit out of us in a way unequalled since Australia beat England at the Oval in 1882, and it may perhaps be a longer time before we recover from the shock. As a first step toward accepting defeat gracefully, we might perhaps cease to talk quite so much about the differences of climate as a contributory cause to our defeat. When the Yale team came over and were beaten by Oxford, they had to compete under conditions of cold and damp quite as foreign to their experience as the heat of New York has been to the Englishmen. We did not urge the disadvantages which Yale had suffered in diminution of our triumph, and it is not quite game to enlarge upon similar causes in mitigation of our defeat.

The Standard says: The victory was most decisive, and in view of the fact that, except Fitzherbert, the Cantabs performed as well as they have generally done at home, one is driven to the conclusion that Oxford was somewhat lucky to beat Yale, or decidedly unlucky in subsequently losing to Cambridge. It is impossible to shut one's eyes to the fact that a [illegible] present time America is peculiarly r[illegible] capable athletes of all kinds; and [illegible] we may hope that at the next in[illegible] meeting the Englishmen will ass[illegible] supremacy over their rivals, or at all events come out on an equality, it would be churlish to refuse the frank and cordial acknowledgment which the recent achievements of their American opponents merit.

The Daily News says: Though not so overwhelming as when the London Athletic club was beaten by the New York Athletic club, the defeat was bad enough. Winning or losing, however, is a small consideration compared with the social results brought about by those friendly rivalries between the old and the new worlds. Our athletic invasion of the States has resulted in a heavy blow to our self-esteem; but the tables may be turned if the Americans send over a team next year. Climate accounts for a good deal in these matters, and other things being at all equal, the advantage must always be with the home team. Admitting this, however, the fact remains that the Americans are just now marvellously strong.

Third Defeat For Baltimore.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Cleveland made it three straight in the wind-up of the games in the Temple cup series in this city. The visitors were unable to hit Young effectively, while McMahon was pounded for seven singles and four doubles, three of which would have been three-baggers at least, but for the ground rules. Cleveland won in the first inning with three runs.

Cleveland........ 3 0 0 0 0 0 3 1 —7
Baltimore....... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1

Earned runs—Cleveland, 6; Baltimore, 1. Base hits—Cleveland, 13; Baltimore, 7. Errors—Cleveland, 1; Baltimore, 1. Batteries—Young and Zimmer; McMahon and Robinson.

Fitz as an Indian.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Oct. 7.—When Fitzsimmons was informed that he was to be admitted to the Chickasaw tribe of Indians in order to escape federal interference when he went to Indian Territory to fight, he said that while he was not stuck on joining the red men, he would gladly do so if it would assure him of meeting Corbett, and meet Corbett he must, or suffer the worst disappointment of his life.

Warning Was Unheeded.

LORAIN, O., Oct. 7.—While nearly 2000 people were standing on a temporary floor yesterday to witness the laying of the corner-stone of the new St. Mary's Catholic church, the floor suddenly gave way, precipitating many people into the basement. One was killed outright, 10 were fatally injured, and between 30 and 40 others were badly hurt. The accident was due to defective timbers. The contractor was told Saturday that the platform was insecure, but he said it would hold all the people that could be crowded upon it. Despite the accident, the services were continued and the laying of the corner-stone was completed.

French Fighters Advancing.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—A letter to The Times, dated Tananarivo, Sept. 23, says: The French are 30 miles off and are advancing fast. The British cemetery and the French observatory have been wrecked. The queen in a speech yesterday said: "The French are close upon you. You said you would fight for me, but you have not fought. I will not yield. I shall die at the palace." The Hovas are preparing to make the last stand at Ambohemanga.

Swept by Prairie Fires.

IPSWICH, S. D., Oct. 7.—Prairie fires, started by farmers for protection, escaped from control and are devastating a rich forming region. Great stock ranches have been entirely burned over, many farmhouses destroyed and a total damage inflicted that already exceeds $100,000. Many families are homeless, and fleeing for shelter. The fires are spreading and rain is earnestly looked for.

Paris Safely Arrives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The steamer City of Paris was docked at 11 o'clock last night. The delay of the Paris was due to her trouble of priming, or foaming of the boilers. Repairs were made during her stay in Southampton, which were expected to remedy the difficulty, but as soon as she was well started the priming again started and continued all the way across.

Lese Majeste.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—Herr Illge, editor of the Liepsic Tageblatt, was sentenced to five months' imprisonment for publishing an article commenting unfavorably upon the emperor's speech to the officers of the guards on Sept. 2.

Another Preliminary Trial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Texas has returned from a two days' preliminary trial trip at sea. The Texas will make another run to test the machinery before undergoing her official trial.

Barely Alive.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The condition of ex-Senator Mahone shows no particular change. He is simply clinging to life by a slender thread, which may be severed at any time.

Aid For De Campos.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—The government will send a fresh lot of generals to Cuba, to enable General de Campos to recommence operations against the insurgents on Nov. 15.

On a Big Scale.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 7.—Negotiations are pending between parties in this city, Denver, San Francisco, New Orleans and the City of Mexico for the organization of a stupendous sporting club in El Paso, with a capital stock of $100,000. The full amount of the capital stock has been pledged.

Denied by Peru.

LIMA, Oct. 7.—The foreign department pronounces as false the assertions to the effect that Peru has advanced objections to that clause in the Chili-Bolivian treaty which granted to Bolivia two seaports on the Pacific coast between Iquique and Arica.

Took 7137 Ballots.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 7.—The Republican representative convention at Rolfe, which has been deadlocked since July 16, adjourned yesterday finally, without making a nomination. The convention took 7137 ballots during its intermittent sessions.

Flood of Counterfeits.

TOLEDO, Oct. 7.—This city is flooded with counterfeit $5 bills. During the last few days they have been thrown out of nearly every bank in town. Hundreds of the bills were passed.

DISAPPEARANCE FEVER

Seems to Have Taken Possession of the Hub and Vicinity.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Samuel A. Wright, a well-known citizen of Charlestown, left his home in that district on Sept. 25, saying that he would return immediately. Up to yesterday no tidings had been received from him. His wife has received intelligence from Cape Breton, N. S., that he was down there and had been seen by several.

Why he left home is unknown. He was not a drinking man, and had been a steady workman. At the time of his disappearance it was not known whether he had any valuables on his person or not. He had not been well of late, and a few days before his departure he wrote to his Nova Scotia relatives. Foul play theories have been cast aside, now that she has learned that he is in Cape Breton.

Gone From Cambridge.

John A. Meyers of Cambridge left home Sept. 20, ostensibly to go to work. He had on his working clothes, and, as far as is known, had no valuables with him. After he had been absent two days the case was put in the hands of the Cambridge police, but they have been unable to find him, and have called on the Boston police for assistance. Search has been made without avail.

He was well known in Cambridge. The last person to see him was a next door neighbor, who saw him when he was passing down the street from his house, and from that point all trace of him was lost. He had not been afflicted with sickness, and there does not seem to have been any reason for the supposition that he had been temporarily deranged and had wandered away. Meyers is 36 years old.

Colored Barber Vanishes.

The Boston police have another Cambridge disappearance in which they have been asked to join in solving. Last Tuesday John H. Smith, colored, disappeared. Nothing has been heard from him since. Smith lived in Cambridge for nearly 50 years. He kept a small barber shop near his home and had a large patronage.

He had enjoyed remarkably good health, not having had a sick day for many years, so that his friends cannot see how his disappearance can be attributed to sickness. He had accumulated a sum of money, but it is not known whether he had taken any of it with him.

Case of an Aged Man.

A peculiarly sad case comes from Winthrop. This time, also, the disappearing man is a life-long resident of the town. About a week ago Charles Dunham, 78 years old, left the home of his relatives and wandered away and has not been seen since. A prolonged search has been made of all the dangerous spots in the vicinity, but no trace of him has been found. He has been unwell for some time.

Where Is May Tracy?

The last case on the list is that of May Tracy, who a week ago disappeared from her home at 3379 Washington street. The parents of the girl can assign no cause for her disappearance. She is described as being 16 years old, 5ft. 3in., dark hair and eyes, and when last seen wore a black skirt, striped pink waist and black straw hat with yellow flowers.

Spanish Troops Hard Pushed.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 7.—Passengers arriving from Cuba report the landing on Thursday of an expedition in Bahai Honda, 40 miles west of Habana, composed of 180 well-armed men. Last Thursday night insurgents entered the city of Santa Clara, killing many Spanish soldiers, obtaining their arms, ammunition and provisions and returning to the country. It was a most daring attack and caused great excitement. The authorities are taxing the merchants of Habana by subscriptions for large amounts to aid in the purchase of new warships. The Spanish soldiers' rations for several days consist of a piece of dried beef and pilot bread.

Captain Stuck to His Post.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 7.—The Indian liner Danera, from Calcutta for London, has landed here nine of the crew of the Italian bark Filippo R, which left Cardiff for Buenos Ayres, and foundered en route. The Filippo R sprang aleak in mid-ocean, and the crew worked incessantly at the pumps for three days, but they were obliged to abandon the ship. Captain Mortela, who refused to leave his ship, and the carpenter were drowned. The others of the crew had a terrible experience in an open boat.

FIFTY YEARS OF CONGREGATIONALISM IN NEWPORT.

At the morning service at the United Congregational Church Rev. R. W. Wallace preached the first of four historical discourses on Congregationalism in Newport, giving a history of the first fifty years. Rhode Island was founded by men who came from Massachusetts and had found themselves unwilling and unable to submit to the austere treatment accorded them in that colony. These men had opinions, and the brethren in Massachusetts had no kindly thought for opinions, except they were authorized opinions. About seventy men came or were expelled, and settled on this island about 1639. They were dissenting Congregationalists and came to adopt Baptist ideas, and soon established the First Baptist Church in this city, which is claimed to be the first Baptist church in America. After the majority of the early settlers had passed away and the bitter feeling against the austerity of the Massachusetts persecution had died down, a man was sent from Massachusetts to establish a Congregational church. He was Nathaniel Clapp, a young man noted for his piety and pulpit talent. He came to Newport in 1695. He preached in the colony or court house (which is still standing on Prison street) to a small congregation. He met with opposition from the Baptists and Friends, and in a short time a law was passed prohibiting religious services in the Colony house. In 1696 a small meeting-house was built on Tanner street (now West Broadway), near Green lane (now Tilden avenue), and Mr. Clapp soon began to make substantial additions to his congregation. But there was no established church, and between 1695 and 1713 the members of the congregation were obliged to go to Bristol to have their children baptized. Mr. Clapp gathered into his following a number of the prominent men of the day and steadily gained in the respect of the community. November 3, 1720, an ecclesiastical council was held to found a church and ordain a minister here. With the establishment of a church the congregation had increased, and before the next April one hundred and fifty persons had been received into some relation with the church, and in October, 1721, the first celebration of the Lord's supper was observed in a Congregational church in Newport. No church record was kept until 1744, at least none had been found, but it is known that the church was liberally supported, and a house, on the corner of Church and Division streets, was set apart by a Mr. Sanford as the minister's house.

There sprang up differences in the church before it was three years old, owing to Mr. Clapp's strict views and unfortunate pastoral decisions regarding baptism and the partaking of the communion. His treatment was too autocratic, and after various attempts to adjust the difficulties the Boston ministry was appealed to. In April, 1728, an ex-parte council was held, Mr. Clapp refusing to participate, and a decision adverse to him was reached. Mr. Clapp refused to accede to the council's action, and a second church was organized with Rev. John Adams as pastor and eight men as constituent members. There was no need of two churches of the same faith in the town, but both continued to exist, Mr. Clapp's congregation worshiping in his house and the Second church in the meeting house on Tanner street. In 1729 the First church built a meeting-house on Carr's lane (now Mill street), the building afterward used as the Unitarian church and now occupied by Mr. Thomas Burlingham as an auction room, and in 1735 the Second church purchased land and built a meeting-house on Clarke street, where the Central Baptist church now is. In 1739 Rev. Joseph Gardiner was sent here as the colleague of Mr. Clapp. Mr. Clapp died October 17, 1745, completing his fiftieth year as pastor of the church. He was honored by everybody, and his venerable figure was known and respected on every side. He was buried in the yard east of the Johnston house on Pelham street. With his death the first half-century of Congregationalism in Newport is appropriately closed.

MR. TITUS DECLINES.

To the Editor of the News:

My name having been mentioned by the press several times recently as a possible candidate for the mayoralty, I beg to say through your columns that I am not a candidate for that office at the coming city election.

Very respectfully,
A. C. TITUS.

SATURDAY'S GOLF MATCH FOR FOURSOMES.

The week of golf at the Newport links was concluded Saturday by a match in foursomes for professionals for a purse of $200 given by the Newport Association. Willie Dunn of Shinnecock played with James Foulis of Chicago against Willie Davis of Newport and Willie Campbell of the Country Club of Brookline. Dunn and Foulis, the favorites, won a very close match. It was for strokes, four rounds of the course, or 36 holes, 18 of which were played in the morning and 18 in the afternoon.

In the morning's play both pairs made 18 holes on 89 strokes, with the holes even all. In the afternoon the first hole was halved. Davis and Campbell lost the second on a short approach, and a pretty but ineffectual put. They took the third by their opponents' driving into an open ditch and Dunn's failure to pull it out on the first stroke. This made it even all. The fourth was halved. The fifth was won by Dunn and Foulis. The sixth was halved, though Campbell nearly lost it by a drive into that particular bunker which defends this especial putting green, but luck carried the ball over safely. Two more halved holes followed, then came a third, which was decidedly unexpected. Davis had putted prettily and successfully, when Dunn tried an almost impossible put which prevented the score being evened up. In the last round Davis and Campbell slumped badly and dropped two holes, leaving their opponents three up and two to play. In the fourth round the match was more than decided, though play was made to the end, Dunn and Foulis running 3 up 2 to play. The summary is as follows:

FIRST ROUND.
Davis and Campbell	5	4	4	4	5	7	5	5	5—44
Dunn and Foulis	5	5	3	5	5	7	5	4	3—42
SECOND ROUND.
Davis and Campbell	5	5	4	4	6	7	5	5	4—45
Dunn and Foulis	4	4	3	6	7	7	6	5	5—47
THIRD ROUND.
Davis and Campbell	4	6	4	4	6	7	5	4	4—44
Dunn and Foulis	4	4	5	4	4	7	5	4	4—41
FOURTH ROUND.
Davis and Campbell			4	6	5	5	6	7	5—38
Dunn and Foulis			5	6	4	4	6	7	4—36

Holes—Davis and Campbell, 171; Dunn and Foulis, 166.

This week the golfists will go to Yonkers, where play will begin Wednesday morning on the St. Andrew's Club links, the oldest in this country, for the president's cup, and accompanying prizes, and in the afternoon for the St. Andrew's cup. The play in these competitions is expected to last through Thursday and Friday; Saturday the Willard Brown cup will be played for, and the professionals will have a match for money prizes.

THE FIRST OF THE NEW BATTLESHIPS.

The first of the new battleships will soon go into commission. The Indiana is ready for her trial trip which is planned to take place on October 15. A thirty-two mile course off the Massachusetts coast between Cape May and Cape Porpoise has been selected. The line officers and the engineers who are to conduct this trial have been instructed in the technical details of the test. To meet the requirements of the contractor, the Indiana must maintain a speed of fifteen knots for four hours. The experts say the ship will have no trouble in keeping up this gait, and it is expected that she will exceed that speed.

So far, only the captain and executive officer have been chosen. Captain Robley D. Evans will be the commanding officer and Lieutenant Commander Swift his executive. Captain Evans has already been assigned to duty with the Indiana, pending her preparation for trial. The Indiana will be assigned to the North Atlantic station. The vessel is not adapted for cruising purposes, and it would be an expensive matter to send her on long voyages. In addition to this expense, the vessel cannot carry a sufficient coal supply to make a lengthy cruise. With the replenishing of the fuel at coaling stations, however, the Indiana can reach any station where her presence is needed.

It is probable that three monitors will be added to the active force of the navy in a short time. Secretary Herbert has given instructions that work shall be pushed on the Terror, Monadnock and Puritan. These ships have been a long time under way and there appears to be no effort on the part of the constructors to have them ready for service. There has, indeed, been some question as to the use to which these monitors might be put, once they were in commission. They are unsuited by their construction for long cruising, and therefore prohibited from visiting foreign ports, although the Monterey did cruise along the Pacific coast for thousands of miles. The work of the monitors is hard on the engineer and line force. The ventilation is not good and the light must be almost entirely artificial, although the deck is studded with portholes of heavy glass, through which some daylight filters. It is likely that the Terror and Puritan will be attached to the North Atlantic squadron and may cruise up and down the eastern coast. The Monadnock, which is at the Mare Island navy yard, will undoubtedly be assigned to the Pacific station, making short runs. It is suggested that the ships be put out of commission, after having been thoroughly tried, and kept in readiness for war.

THE HERMIONE'S CREW ENTERTAINS.

Saturday evening Captain Mitchell and the officers of steam yacht Hermione gave a reception and social to their friends in this city, in recognition of the kindly manner in which they have been treated while here. The officers and crew of the Hermione are all Scotchmen, and the gathering was Scotch, and like all such in this city was marked by a lively, good-natured, jolly time, lasting from early evening till the clock announced the near approach of Sunday. There was a supper, dancing, music by an orchestra and by the Caledonian Society's piper, and songs. During the evening Mr. Samuel Young, in behalf of the local Scotchmen, presented Captain Mitchell and the first and second mates and engineer of the Hermione with Masonic charms. The Hermione will sail for New York tomorrow, and may go thence to the Clyde, as she is chartered by Mr. Goelet only for the season.

Confusion as to the choice of a blood-purifier is unnecessary. There is but one best Sarsaparilla, and that is Ayer's. This important fact was recognized at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, being the only blood-purifier admitted to be placed on exhibition.

THE NUN.

'Tis not for you, my lady fair,
To fold your dimpled hands,
To darker hood your raven hair,
And on your lily brow to wear
The Sister's whiter bands.

These eyes which mock the cloister cloths,
And glitter through the gloom,
Too brightly tempt as mortal moths
For one whose virgin soul betroths
The convent for a groom.

Let those retire who quit mankind
To measure scorn for scorn—
The weak of heart or strong of mind,
Who there may take their wounds to bind
Or guard against the thorn.

But you? Ah, no, my lady fair;
The Maker's marks are plain;
Such cheeks could never bring despair;
The crimson currents coursing there
Are not for cold disdain.

But if you needs must take the veil,
And henceforth dwell apart,
Come where the Credo and the Hall
Are loyal love's own tenderest tale,
And cloister in my heart.

—[Charles J. Bayne, in Harper's Bazar.

CONTENT.

The red deer hies to his leafy glade,
The goat to its mountain steep,
The grayling gambols beneath the shade
Where the brook runs still and deep.
The hawk flies to its mountain nest,
The lark to her lonesome lea—
My baby lies on its mother's breast,
And the mother is here with me.

Oh, fair is the sea and the sky above,
And sweet is the summer land,
But what is the world to a woman's love
And the feel of a dimpled hand?
And what do I care for the land—the land,
And what do I care for the sea,
When I feel the touch of a baby's hand
And the mother is here by me?

The gray old world goes on and on,
Its labors shall never cease,
But here is the blush of creation's dawn
And the blossoming rose of peace.
But what do I care for the mountain's crest,
And what for the lonesome lea?
My baby lies on its mother's breast,
And the mother is here with me.—

—[Albert Bigelow Paine, in October Ladies' Home Journal.

....Sir Conrad Reeves was the first mulatto to be knighted. He is chief justice of Barbadoes, although of slave descent on his mother's side.

....Ex-United States Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont has taken up his residence in Philadelphia. He calls it "the typical American city of all this great country."

....Baron von Stumm, the German politician and millionaire, had to serve only one day's imprisonment for challenging Professor Wagner, the famous political economist. The emperor reduced his time of punishment from fourteen days.

....Prince Hohenlohe, chancellor of Germany, is the possessor of a large estate in Russia, which was inherited by his wife. Alexander III ordered all foreigners holding real estate in Russia to sell it or become Russians. The present czar has made an exception in favor of Hohenlohe, although most of the property which he owned has been sold.

....Rev. J. F. He has never retired to rest in the confidence that he would awake in this world, since not only the vicious but the lawful authorities were ready to get rid of him.

THE ILLUSTRATED AMERICAN.

The current number of the Illustrated American has on its cover a beautiful picture of Ethel Barrymore, daughter of Maurice Barrymore and Georgie Drew, who has just adopted the profession of her parents. The opening article is called "The Passing of the Pugilist," and is profusely illustrated. This is followed by Henry Austin with a dramatic story of another "Famous American Duel." "Plays and Players," by Charles Frederic Nirdlinger, is full of powerful suggestion. "Shall Henley succeed Tennyson?" by James Realf, Jr., is the next article of note, and "A Plea for Mendacity," by Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, is exceedingly amusing. The humorous double-page picture by Thomas Nast, called "Education of a Prince," will interest everybody. "The Broom-Squire," by S. Baring-Gould, continues. "The Indian as a Soldier," by Lieutenant Thomas H. Wilson, is a valuable contribution, and "Life at Misrule," by the charming writer who signs J. H. N., will make every one wish that summer was not over. Many beautiful illustrations, as usual, adorn the number.

SPAIN'S AMERICAN LOSSES.

It is not very strange that Spain should hold on to Cuba with bull-dog tenacity. She was once the mistress of half the western continent, and the insurgent island is about all that is left of her former possessions. The story of the discovery and conquest of America is familiar to all, as Spain held sway from Florida and Louisiana on the north to Terra del Fuego on the south.

The record of Spanish losses in America constitutes an important chapter in the history of the continent. Her first great loss occurred in 1814, when Buenos Ayres established her independence. It was about the time of the close of our war with England and many of our folks were in a somewhat warlike mood, and so turned their eyes in that direction. The sympathies of our people were all with the revolutionists, and the United States under President Madison was the first government to accord belligerent rights to the insurgents and to acknowledge the independence of the rising republic. During the contest Spain complained that war vessels were fitted out in the United States in aid of "the rebels," and that they were allowed to sail under the insurgent flag. But this, though doubtless true, was not with the consent of the government, for Congress passed severe laws against such a violation of the comity of nations, and they were vigorously enforced.

A break having thus been made in Spanish control, other provinces quickly followed and revolution succeeded revolution until all South America broke loose. The contagion extended to Brazil, a Portuguese colony, which in due time also threw off her foreign yoke and established an imperial government. It was in these days that President Monroe announced his famous edict, which was and still is approved by our people, and which sets apart America for American control without the interference of Europe. As in the case of Buenos Ayres, the United States first recognized, one by one, the whole group of South American republics. This action was taken under the lead of Henry Clay, the foremost statesman of his time, and was quickly followed by a recognition on the part of European nations. And so almost at one fell swoop South America was lost forever to Spanish control.

Florida and Louisiana became ours by purchase, and with their acquisition by us Spain lost her footing on the mainland, and only a few islands, of which Cuba was chief, remained. And now the demand is made that she let go her hold on the last vestige of territory and her last show of authority in the section of the world where she had won her proudest achievements.

The decadence of Spain as thus indicated has scarcely a parallel in the history of modern nations, and it is little wonder that she holds on as with a death grip to what remains of her former dignity and power. But it is doubtful if she can maintain her control. In this, as in all her colonial enterprises, she has ruled her foreign subjects with an iron hand, and the sooner the Cubans can become free and independent the better for themselves and their neighbors. They have a hard task before them, and just as soon as it is allowable our government should afford recognition, as did our fathers in preceding revolutions.

THE A. P. A. FAILURE.

The political campaign in Massachusetts goes to show that the A. P. A. movement is not so strong in that state as many have supposed. These third parties are always hopeful and very strong on paper and usually weak on voting days. The Prohibitionists have had a remarkable record along this line, and it has been demonstrated time and again that there are a good many men who talk temperance and who practice it in daily life who do not vote the prohibitory ticket. This may or may not be regarded as an inconsistency on their part, for opinions differ widely as to methods when the case is carried into politics as a sole and distinctive issue. And so the so-called patriotic orders may be much stronger than their vote indicates on such an issue as the re-nomination of Governor Greenhalge, who has, so far as we can see, done nothing that should arouse active opposition from that quarter. The trouble in these small parties comes largely from the extremists, who rule as with a rod of iron and who are often bigoted and imperious to the last degree, especially towards those who adopt the same principles and yet do not coincide with them as to all the details and methods of procedure. If the A. P. As propose to become a political party they should come out into the open and work in the broad and bright sunshine, and should seek a larger basis for action than the spots in Governor Greenhalge's record, which at the most were mere trifles compared with the real issues at stake.

MERIT WINS.

There is not a crowned head in Europe whose death would have called forth so many sincere expressions of regret and honor as have been uttered over the prostrate form of Louis Pasteur. Greater display might have been accorded to royalty and wealth, but much of all that is merely ceremonial. Pasteur was a private citizen, and the mourners at his grave were there not merely to dignify and honor the representative of an official position, for the sake of the office he held, but to pay tribute to transcendent ability and untiring devotion to what had been his life-work.

It is too early to be able to form any just estimate of the benefits which are to come to mankind through the investigations of Professor Pasteur. Enough is known to enable the present generation to see the open doors through which others shall enter, and to discern the platforms on which his successors shall build. And it is more than probable that the grand outcome will surpass our most sanguine expectations. Pasteur stood at the threshold, and like Columbus, who discovered America, may have had little thought of the vast capabilities of the new world which he had opened up to his successors. That he should be stricken down just at the moment when he seems to have been most needed is one of those inscrutable mysteries of divine providence of which the past has furnished so many examples. But it is a case where, though the workmen die, the work goes on. Other men will begin where the fallen chieftain left off, and the name of Pasteur will be enrolled among the noblest minds of ancient or modern times.

So many accidents have occurred by the falling of temporary structures erected for sight-seers on public occasions as to give fair warning to all builders and promotors of such affairs. The latest "accident" of this character is reported from an Ohio town, where a crowd of people, assembled to witness the laying of the corner-stone of a new church edifice, were overwhelmed by the giving way of the supports on which they were led to rely, and several of them are reported dead or dying. The law against the constitution of unsafe buildings should be applied with extreme rigor against structures of this class, and all such should be thoroughly inspected and officially approved before occupancy.

Mayor Pingree is a candidate for mayor of Detroit for the fourth term, with a good chance of winning. From this distance, he appears to be a good mayor, and an original one. Some of his methods are rather cranky, but on the whole he is a pretty good official. He is the author of the "potato-patch" charity. By the by, will some one give us the results of that movement? We were treated to full descriptions of the planting; how about the harvest?

The Haverhill Gazette asks, "Will the Duke of Marlborough please go home?" and adds: "We have had enough twaddle about this wonderful youngster in the metropolitan papers, and are ready for something else." All this is true enough, but it does not appear to be the fault of the duke so much as of the newspapers. There is altogether too much "twaddle" over society matters in these days.

The Fall River manufacturers are not pleased with the outcome of the Warren fire, inasmuch as they have to bear a considerable portion of the loss. But that is just what they contracted for, and it is of no use for them to complain of the manufacturers' mutual insurance companies, which may be called upon to make heavy assessments on their policy holders.

It is becoming more and more clear that the Armenian "outbreak" in Constantinople was nothing more nor less than an Armenian massacre by Turkish police and Turkish mobs. In other words, the Turks are managing such things about as we do in this country, especially in cases like those at Jackson's Hole and in the Southwest.

The Boston Standard says it was the refusal of Mr. Morse to allow his name to be presented in the Republican convention which lost him the nomination. But his name was there just the same, and voted upon, and it looks at this distance as though it was through the lack of votes that the nomination was lost.

Senator Hill says that "if there is a majority of Democrats in New York state this fall, and they do their duty, the ticket will be elected." There is no doubt about it, whatever. The Senator hits the nail squarely on the head sometimes. But will he now proceed to solve the mystery hidden in that little word "if?"

A POET'S ROOM AT ATLANTA.

A notice was issued by the Massachusetts board of managers of the Atlanta exhibition, about ten days ago, requesting any one who had articles connected with the history of the Longfellow house in old Cambridge to communicate with the secretary of the board, with a view to lending them for exhibition in the state building. So far the managers have not received any such articles, but they have been discussing various propositions with the members of the poet's family, who, of course, have the largest number of the most interesting articles associated with this historic old mansion. No definite arrangements have yet been made, but Richard H. Dana, who is acting in the matter for the other members of the family, said Thursday that a portrait of Longfellow and a framed copy of one of his original manuscripts would probably be sent on.

In speaking of the matter, Mr. Dana said that the suggestion of such an exhibition was really an after-thought. It was at first proposed that a special room in the Massachusetts building should be turned into an accurate copy of the poet's study. To do this it would have been necessary to send on all the furnishings of the original study, including pictures, busts, tables, chairs, bookcases, books, etc. This the family was willing to do, as the members felt that no accurate reproduction of the study could be made in any other way. But when they came to consider that the study, as it is now and has remained since the poet's death, is annually seen by several thousand visitors, and that during the period that the Atlanta exhibition lasted a large number of these visitors would be deprived of that pleasure, while the visitors to the exposition would see only a copy and not the real study, the question arose whether it would not be best after all to leave the study undisturbed, and after careful consideration this course was decided on. The reproduction of the study would have entailed a great deal of pains-taking labor in making the room itself an accurate copy of the real study, with its colonial fireplace, etc., and for this reason and the others already stated it was decided to make no change.

The suggestion has now been made to have the room in the state house building, which had been set apart for the poet's study, used for the exhibition of the portraits, autographs, etc., of the literary men of Massachusetts, and as this proposition is much more feasible than the first one, it will probably be carried out. The design is to make Longfellow the centre of this exhibit, and the family will doubtless send on to Atlanta a framed portrait of the poet which it has, and also a framed autograph copy of one of his poems, which will hang under the picture. Similar mementos of the other prominent literary men of Massachusetts will also no doubt be contributed by interested persons, and in this way a most interesting and attractive exhibit will be formed.—[Boston Transcript.

GLADSTONE AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Mr. Gladstone has written a letter to the temperance congress, in which he says: "While profoundly sensible of the immense importance of the liquor question, I cannot pretend that I have mastered its difficulties. I see it clearly in certain of its aspects, but as a whole it baffles me. I have no doubt that the local option principle is sound, but they must be of very sanguine temperament who believe that it is sufficient to dispose of the entire question. The method of the sale of liquor for public account which exists in parts of Scandinavia presents great advantages, and if adopted here ought to be adopted in its best form. The plan of free trade with strict police supervision and adequate taxation was unfortunately refused a fair trial in Great Britain. Of the scheme of mere limitation by reducing the number of licenses, I have a poor opinion."

SUBSTITUTE FOR BARK IN TANNING.

The project for establishing canaigre plantations in Texas in order to facilitate the growth of the tanning industry in Kansas City deserves the hearty support of all citizens. It is a well understood fact that if the canaigre plant is grown to any extent in Texas, the future tanning centre of the United States must be Kansas City. Here is the second hide market in the world, and no market can compete with this in the quality of its hides. Bark cannot be successfully used on account of freight rates, but by the use of canaigre a better leather can be made at a lower price than under the most favorable conditions of tanning with bark in the country. The promoters of this project propose to buy and cultivate lands for the purpose of raising the plant. When they are able to supply the market they will make no discrimination against any tanneries which may come, and will use every means to bring as many tanneries here as possible.—[Kansas City Times.

BEHRING SEA WIDER THAN SUPPOSED.

A Seattle, Wash., despatch says: "The Department at Washington will be informed by Commander Drake, of United States fish commission steamer Albatross, that a serious mistake was originally made in the determination of the Siberian coast line. The error equals one minute longitude, or fifteen miles of coast line, as determined and charted, being that distance too far to the eastward. This blunder was discovered and verified by scientific labors of the Albatross corps of astronomers. The mistake claimed by Commander Drake as to the Siberian coast being charted fifteen miles too far east gives a greater breadth to the Behring sea and straits. Figuratively, it will push Siberia back upon Russia fifteen miles, and the sixty mile limit sealing zone will be carried that distance further toward the Russian territory."

No living writer in English has wider knowledge of Constantinople from personal investigation than Mr. Marion Crawford, and in a new book entitled "Constantinople," to be published immediately by the Scribners, he presents in condensed form all his information in regard to that city. It is written in Mr. Crawford's most charming narrative style, and is notable for its picturesque descriptions and for the clear manner in which it summarizes information not accessible elsewhere. It will be profusely illustrated by Edwin A. Weeks, the greatest artist of Oriental subjects that America has produced.

Mrs. Austin's popular historical novel "Standish of Standish," has been printed in two volumes, for which Mr. Frank T. THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7, 8 A. M.—For New England—Partly cloudy weather; light local showers in western portions tonight, and possibly on the south-east coast Tuesday morning; increasing southwesterly winds; cooler in western portions Tuesday evening.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, Oct. 7, 8 A. M.—Local forecast for Boston and vicinity until Tuesday night—Increasing cloudiness; probably showers tonight or Tuesday morning; cooler Tuesday evening and night; westerly winds, increasing in force.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS.

A storm of ordinary energy, central this morning in upper Michigan (lowest barometer about 29.40 inches), has produced moderate amounts of rain throughout the states bordering on the great lakes, and is preceded eastward to the north Atlantic coast by cloudy, threatening conditions. In other sections of the country the weather is fair, but rain has occurred in the Southwest, more than two inches being reported from central Texas. A cool wave has developed in the Northwest, and this morning covers that region, with temperatures in general below freezing. Rapidly rising temperature prevails in advance of the storm. The morning range in the New England states is from 35 degrees, in northern Vermont, to about 65 degrees, on the southeastern coast.

Brokers of the leading bears were quite prominent in the stock market after 11 o'clock, and their sales brought about a further decline in prices, notwithstanding some buying for London account. Sugar sold down to 108½, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy to 85¼, Rock Island to 76¾, St. Paul to 75¾, Northwestern to 104¾, Chicago Gas to 69¾, Atchison to 21, Missouri Pacific to 35¾, Distillers to 23¾, Tennessee Coal and Iron to 41, and Wabash preferred to 22¾. The further advance in the prices of certain grades of refined sugar, and intimations that anthracite coal will be put up later in the week fell flat, so far as the stock market is concerned. SPECIAL WIRE TO THE NEWS.

"KAFFIR FEVER."

Chicago Likely Soon to be Stricken with the Disease.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—A morning paper says: Chicago is to have an attack of "Kaffir fever," the disease that is now playing havoc with London financiers and which closely resembles the famous "South Sea bubble." J. F. Webber, a promoter, is now in Chicago on a prospecting tour, not looking for new gold mines, but for money to develop those in South Africa. Before December 1 Kaffir stocks in all probability will be listed in Chicago, and the South African-American Investment and Mining Company, with offices in Johannesburg, London, Chicago and New York, will be engaged in an effort to float its stock in America. For two weeks it has been whispered among bankers and brokers that such an attempt on the part of the South African magnates was inevitable, and that Chicago will be down with the "Kaffir fever," just as London now is, before the winter is over. The establishment of the South African-American Investment and Mining Company is certain: whether its operations will be begun simultaneously in New York and Chicago is a question which the next two days will settle.

WORSE THAN REPORTED.

Eighteen Persons Killed and a Hundred Injured in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7.—Later news from the scene of the railway accident near Ottignies shows that the disaster was a great deal more serious than the first reports indicated. It is now ascertained that eighteen persons were killed and at least a hundred injured. The collision was not between two passenger trains, as at first reported, but between a passenger and a freight train. The engine of the freight train struck the passenger cars, two of which were crowded with men and women. These cars were telescoped and a third was thown on top of them. A rescuing party worked throughout the night taking out the dead and injured from the debris.

FIGHT WILL BE FIERCE.

Western Freight Rate War to be Openly Inaugurated Soon.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 7.—Railroad officials here admitted yesterday that a freight rate war will be openly inaugurated immediately, and they also admitted that the fight will be fierce. There has been a secret cutting of rates by a number of the trunk lines for the past two weeks, and now that the receivers of the Atchison have secured the sanction of the court, and have publicly announced a cut of twenty-three cents on apples from Missouri river points to Colorado, the war is fully on. Other rates will come down and demoralization will ensue. Colorado merchants suffer by this freight war. They are all well stocked with goods for the fall trade, and a general slashing of rates will be disastrous to profits.

THE DUKE'S COACHING PARTY.

The latest dispatches from the truly royal progress of the coaching party in which the Duke of Marlborough is the honored guest indicate that they extended their route so as to pause for the night at one of the greatest and most delightful show places on the banks of the Hudson, the famous Dinsmore estate, known as "The Locust." This pleasant place, which is situated at Staatsburg, is but a few miles from Governor Morton's domain of Ellerslie, and from the country houses of the Astors, the Ogden Mills and the Livingstons. The house is an enormous one of wood, built in the style of about a quarter of a century ago and containing a spacious central hall and great verandas from which one obtains a fine view of the Hudson on the one hand and of the noble park, with its splendid trees and great conservatories, on the other. The late William Dinsmore arranged that this family residence should be shared between his sons, Clarence and William Dinsmore, Jr.; and it is tacitly understood that they and their families should spend alternate summers in Europe. This summer the place falls to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dinsmore, who are continuing at Staatsburg the sumptuous entertainment for which they became noted last winter in town.

The Duke of Marlborough, in making this visit, is paying his respects to a connection by marriage, since Mrs. Clarence Dinsmore, like his aunt, Lady Randolph Churchill, was born a Jerome. The mistress—or part mistress—of "The Locusts" is one of the handsomest, most distinguished and most amiable women in society, and the brief visit to "The Locusts" can scarcely fail to be the most agreeable incident in this now famous drive, calculated to display the glories of the American autumn.

The accounts by wire agree that Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt was "not in the least disconcerted" by the stares of the residents of Poughkeepsie. The local scribes are in error if they expect a girl who has faced an assemblage in Narragansett and Bellevue avenues, Newport, and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, to succumb before the populace of Poughkeepsie. The future duchess should have swooned and been revived with smelling salts; but as the town contains a particularly enterprising artist with the camera, she was probably posing for the inevitable photograph.

"The season," now that October has sounded, is scarcely likely to be delayed for horse show or portraits of women show, or the opera. These events will come in good time, but the public is aware that however delightful the mountains may be, however agreeable suburban country clubs and country house visits, New York in October is more tempting still, and that "in and out of town" is an excellent program to follow until the more spectacular events, including the ducal nuptials, assemble the scattered clans of fashionable society.

The rumored choice of St. Thomas' Church for the Marlborough-Vanderbilt wedding is, as was predicted, an excellent one. It will be much easier to manage the crowd of the curious in upper Fifth avenue than in either Madison avenue (St. Bartholomew's) or Broadway (Grace Church or old Trinity), one of the most "fashionable" of up-town churches.

St. Thomas' has been the scene of several highly spectacular weddings, from as long ago as Miss Marcia Roosevelt gave her hand to Mr. Edward Scovel to the comparatively recent date when the late Harry Legrand Cannon led Miss Elizabeth Thompson to the altar. And the interior, which is not unlike Boston's Trinity Church, is well adapted to a great wedding ceremony such as this is sure to be. The popular interest is likely to be so whetted by the details of the courtship and engagement, and by the strained relations in the Vanderbilt family, as to sweep down the barriers on the wedding day; and in view of this and one or two other promised functions it is perhaps just as well that Rev. Dr. Parkhurst has gone back to work to reorganize our municipal police force. —[Walsingham's letter to Boston Herald.

A DAY IN CAMP.

Program for the Artillery's Outing Tomorrow.

The Newport artillery will have its field day exercises and drills, complimentary to His Excellency, Governor Lippitt, on the polo grounds tomorrow. The company will assemble early in the morning, and have a preliminary drill before the arrival of the 11:30 o'clock train, which will bring the members of Governor Lippitt's personal staff and officers of the state militia who have been invited to witness the manœuvres.

After the arrival of the train the line will be formed, with Governor Lippitt and members of his staff and Colonel Barker and his staff mounted. The Newport band will furnish music, and the several detachments of the company will be commanded by Lieutenant Colonel George C. Shaw, Major Herbert Bliss and Captain Henry C. Stevens. Following the company will be the two field pieces and the baggage wagon.

The company will march from the depot up Marlboro and down Thames street to the polo lot, and will be reviewed by Governor Lippitt as it enters the gate. Immediately on arrival the tents will be pitched, the commissary's squad will set up the cooking utensils, and everything will be made ready for a day in camp. As soon as possible, Commissary Stacy will serve dinner to the members of the company in the mess tent, and the officers and invited guests will be entertained by Governor Lippitt in his tent. At 2:30 o'clock the camp will be inspected and this will be followed by battalion, extended order and Artillery drills, and after these will come the mess call and supper will be served, and the company will return to the armory.

The day in camp has been arranged to give the Artillery an opportunity to show what it can do in field duties, and to enable Governor Lippitt and the officers of the militia to see certain manœuvres in field work. The officers of the Second and Fourth United States artillery from Fort Adams have been invited to witness the inspection and drills, and the grounds will be open to all citizens who wish to be present. To give the company ample room on the field, it has been decided that no carriages will be allowed within the ground.

The members of the company will be fully equipped for a ten days' tour of field duty, except that they will carry no stores. Each member will wear his fatigue uniform, leggings and campaign hat, and carry, besides his rifle and equipments, an overcoat, cape, woolen and rubber blankets, half-shelter tent, canteen, haversack and mess kit. The day will undoubtedly be not only of much interest to the spectators, but of great service to the soldiers.

NAVAL NOTES.

Captain James O'Kane has been ordered to command the Richmond.

Captain H. F. Picking has been ordered to duty as a member of the board of inspection and survey.

Commander Francis M. Barber, naval attache of the United States legations in Tokio and Pekin, has applied for retirement. The department will undoubtedly grant his request. Commander Barber's action is the result of a severe illness, from which he is now convalescing.

The dilatoriness displayed by the President in acting upon naval examining and retiring cases during the summer has caused considerable disaffection in naval circles. Officers say his action in holding up cases sometimes seriously reflects upon candidates for promotion who have successfully passed their examinations, and who have to wait for weeks before his approval of their cases, reaches the department.

The Navy Department was advised yesterday by cablegram from her commanding officer that the Monocacy, of the Asiatic squadron, had arrived at Shanghai. The message also stated that the Machias had left Hong Kong for Shanghai. Cruiser Detroit is now at Foo Chow. Acting Secretary of the Navy McAdoo said that no special significance was to be attached to these changes of stations, beyond the fact that there was a possibility that trouble might break out in that quarter, and as the Machias and Monocacy are of slight draught it was deemed best to keep them in southern waters.

Acting Secretary of the Navy McAdoo has disapproved the recommendation of officials of the Brooklyn navy yard to reduce the wages of certain classes of workmen employed there. In disapproving, Mr. McAdoo was influenced by the action of Secretary Herbert several weeks ago in regard to the Norfolk navy yard. The labor board at that yard recommended that there be a re-rating of several classes of employes, but the Secretary decided not to make any reduction in pay, as suggested, as he found there had been no decrease in pay of workmen in the same business outside of the yard.

PREMATURE PROGNOSTICATION.

Experience has shown that it is rash to indulge in prophecy about the course of a national convention a year ahead of its meeting. The men and the issues which now engage the attention of members of both the great parties, may indeed, be prominent next June, but they may be very much less prominent than they are now. It is but a few months since it seemed to be an assured fact that there would be a division in both parties on the silver question, and that a third candidate would be run on a free silver platform, with the prospect of carrying half a dozen states, and throwing the election of President into the House. Now, in spite of the opinions of some esteemed contemporaries to the contrary, the probability is quite the other way. The energy with which southern Democrats have rejected all overtures to lead them into a free silver party is merely one of many indications that the question of the monetary standard is not destined to split existing political organizations in two.

There is every evidence that the force of the silver agitation, both at home and abroad, has passed what may be called its maximum point. When the price of wheat went up, the Norman farmer ceased to look to silver to do for him what protective duties had failed to accomplish, and the ordinary sentiment of France on the subject was restored. As the English workman began to perceive that the free coinage of silver meant lower wages, the move of the Lancashire cotton spinners to get on even terms with India ceased to be worth the championship of any aspiring politician. As with the gradual revival of trade, and the broadening of her great commercial and financial operations, Germany appreciates more fully the advantages of having her monetary system in accord with that of the rest of the civilized world, there is no authoritative demand for the "rehabilitation" of silver within the bounds of her empire. So it happens that, even if everybody is not perfectly satisfied with things as they are, everybody is quite satisfied to leave them alone, and that none of the great powers will take the initiative in calling a new international monetary conference.

The people here who believe that the United States can safely establish a monetary standard of its own are more noisy than numerous. Perhaps even the ranks of the international bimetallists are not so well filled as they appear, international bimetallism being a somewhat convenient evasion on the part of many cautious persons, who, in spite of their pretence to the contrary, know that it is practically impossible, but who do not like to be called "gold bugs." In any case, the evident desire in Europe to let the controversy drop till some clearer idea can be had on the future commercial relations of the two metals considered merely as bullion must have a discouraging effect on the agitation here. Half the force of that agitation is, moreover, taken away by the rise in price of some of our great staple products, and the consequent demonstration that the place of silver in our currency has no such effect on values as has been attributed to it. In the campaign of education on the side of sound money, the education of experience and the logic of events are proving the most powerful obstacles to any further diffusion of the fallacies of the free silver men.—[Boston Herald.

NEW ROADS FOR TOWNS.

At the last January session of the General Assembly a law was passed permitting the towns of the state to apply for half-mile samples of new roadbeds, which are to be laid at the expense of the state. Mr. C. F. Chace has been appointed commissioner of roads, and under his direction the $30,000 appropriations will be expended, the towns to pay one-quarter of the cost. About fifteen towns, including Middletown and Portsmouth, have asked for sample half-miles. Warwick was the first town to apply, and then followed Johnston, Bristol, Warren and Barrington. The town council of Warwick has not yet been able to decide where the sample half-mile shall be constructed. Roads will be built in Johnston, Bristol, Warren and Barrington at the same time, and the work will be begun immediately. The towns of Portsmouth and Middletown have asked that the two half-mile sections be built adjoining each other, so that there will be a mile stretch of good road.

Dr. Gordon, of the old South Meeting House, Boston, has nearly ready at the Riverside Press a religious book of much promise, entitled "The Christ of Today."

ENGLAND URGENT.

Insists That the Porte Shall Accept the Armenian Reform Scheme.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—The Armenian patriarch has written to the representatives of the powers, urging them to use their authority to restore order. He declares that men disguised as Softas, Mohammedan theological students, began the attack on the Armenians. He gives the names of 406 Armenians who have been reported at the patriarchate as missing.

When Sir Philip Currie visited Kiamil Pasha Saturday he insisted in vigorous terms on the absolute necessity of the Porte accepting the scheme of reforms submitted by Great Britain, France and Russia May 11, and on the publication throughout the empire of a decree proclaiming the fact that the government had accepted the scheme. He informed the grand vizier that the British prime minister had not the slightest intention of abating his demands of principle, whatever modifications he might admit in the reform scheme as presented. The events of the week, Sir Philip said, had shown the intolerable consequence of a delay that could no longer be permitted. At the same time that the ambassador was visiting the grand vizier the dragoman of the British embassy, acting under Sir Philip's orders, visited the patriarchate to express sympathy with the Armenians and to explain the action that had been taken by the powers. Sir Philip's insisting upon the prompt acceptance of the scheme throws much doubt upon the correctness of the reports that have reached here from London, to the effect that the Salisbury government would recede from its position of demanding protection for the Armenians and a radical reform in the administrative methods in Armenia. It is generally believed here now that, notwithstanding the alleged fact that Russia and France have expressed themselves as satisfied with the Sultan's proposed reforms, Great Britain will demand and enforce the fulfillment to the letter of the reforms submitted by her.

Though the city is quiet, cases of violence growing out of the troubles here are occurring in many places along the shores of the Bosphorus, in which Armenians are always the victims. The murders in the Pera gas works have excited deep indignation among the foreign residents. This massacre illustrates the feeling of fanaticism that is prevailing, and fears are entertained that it will spread to the provinces, in which event very serious results may follow. In the city a spark may at any moment ignite into a flame the smouldering embers of religious hatred. This is particularly the case here. The walls of the church of Kara-Gumruck, where a number of Armenians are seeking refuge, were breached last night, evidently with the intention of affording a passage to Mohammedans if the sanctity of the church should be violated. Viewing the situation dispassionately, it is impossible to foresee where the trouble will end. Large crowds gather about the gates of the British embassy, but no fears are entertained that any attack will be made upon the women and children who have fled there for safety. Should the Turks violate the embassy they would without doubt call down upon themselves a storm that would render their existence in Europe more precarious than it is at present, if it did not drive them across the Bosphorus into Asia Minor. Opposite the embassy a patrol marches backward and forward.

As has before been stated, the present outbreak was by no means unexpected. The Hintchak, an Armenian anarchist society, some time ago declared its intention of creating a riot. All the shops and bazaars owned by Armenians are deserted and two thirds of the trade of the city is stagnant. At night the silence in the suburbs is only broken by the tramp of the patrols, and the occasional shrieking of women, where the police search houses and carry off their inmates.

DEMAND HIS RECALL.

Chicago Armenians Denounce Minister Terrell's Apathy.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Minister Terrell, who represents the United States at the Turkish court, was denounced at a meeting of the Armenian National Union, held at Odd Fellows' hall yesterday. The union passed resolutions demanding Terrell's recall. The Armenian residents of Chicago were out in force, and they gave strong and emphatic announcement of their disgust at Minister Terrell for what they consider his apathy and indifference. There was no mincing of words, and the speakers indulged in positive bertings of the Texas diplomat, who, they say, misrepresents his nation instead of making a firm and dignified stand for the protection of people who are being persecuted and murdered by the atrocious Turks.

DIVIDED THE SPOILS.

One of Two Thieving Railroad Men Under Arrest.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 7.—John Don Farden, alias T. J. Franklin, formerly a clerk in the Adams Express office at Terre Haute, Ind., was arrested here Saturday night, charged with the theft of $16,000 from his employers. He waived extradition proceedings and was taken west last night by a Pinkerton detective, who has been on his trail since the robbery occurred a few weeks ago. Farden admitted that he took a package containing the money, and implicated J. R. Barnett, ticket agent of the Vandalia railroad at Terre Haute, in the crime. The men separated after dividing the spoils, Farden going south while Barnett traveled westward. The latter, it is said, is still at large.

FAVORITE RESORTS DESERTED.

Indications of a Decrease in the Alaska Sealing Herds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—United States revenue cutter Rush arrived here yesterday from Sitka. She reports that the Alaska Commercial Company has taken fifteen thousand skins this season, being the full amount permitted by law. Pelagic sealers have taken fully thirty-five thousand more pelts from the protected zone. The officers of the Rush state that there are further indications of a decrease in the herds. Favorite resorts of the seals are now deserted.

Dropped Dead in His Pulpit.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 7.—Rev. Dr. Longstreet dropped dead in the pulpit of the Wayne Avenue church yesterday, while conducting services.

Disastrous Railroad Collision in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7.—Two heavily laden passenger trains came into collision between Wavre and Ottignies, about eighteen miles from this city, last evening, and most of the cars of both trains were wrecked. Ten persons were killed outright and forty were injured, some of them fatally.

Diphtheria Closes the Schools in an Indiana Town.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 7.—The alarming spread of diphtheria in this city has compelled the authorities to take measures to close all the schools to check the ravages of the disease. From one to three deaths have occurred daily for several days.

Gunboat Prevents a Cuban Insurgent Attack.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—A despatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that gunboat Alsedo left Madrugada September 26 and fusiladed with grape shot the insurgents at several points along the coast. This manœuvre prevented a projected attack by the rebels on Maysi.

No Further Trouble at Jackson's Hole.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, Oct. 7.—No notice of further trouble at Jackson's Hole between settlers and Indians has been received by Wyoming state officials, and reports of an outbreak are denied.

THE MAGAZINES.

Few more pathetic stories from real life, illustrative of the strength of character of a child of eight, were ever told than the one which appears in the October number of Babyhood, under the heading of "Faithful to His Trust." In interesting contrast to this is the illustrated true story of "How Tony was Tamed." The medical articles in this number are on "Nursing in Infantile Skin Affections," by Dr. C. W. Allen, and "Nursery Gymnastics," by Dr. S. J. Fort. The medical editor answers a number of questions upon the diet of young children, on constipation, nail-biting, etc. A rather novel view is put forth by a writer on "Dolls Psychologically Considered." "The Mothers' Parliament" contains, as usual, a number of interesting and helpful letters on the many subjects which arise in the care and training of young children.

The illustrated articles in the Monthly Illustrator and Home and Country (the blended title of "Home and Country" and "The Monthly Illustrator" which heretofore have been issued as separate magazines), for October, are: "From Cuxhaven to Constantinople," by C. W. Allers; "The New Head of the Army," by Edward Hildane; "The Liberty Bell in Europe," by Mary Foster Ormsby; "The Lost Creek Literary Club," by Captain Jack Crawford; "A Brilliant Example," by Dora Read Goodale; "Some Charming Feminine Types," by Edward King; "Mysteries of a Sultan's Palace," by George R. Watson; "The Struggle in Cuba," by Manuel Garcia; "The Blossom from the Brain of Hapi," by Lucy Cleveland; "The Pottery of the American Indians," by W. J. Hoffman, M. D.; "My Pet Subject," by Arthur Hoeber; "Jean Valjean," by Victor Hugo, condensed by Ernest Ingersoll, and "The Latest." There are 166 illustrations, besides other features which make the number very attractive and popular.

The editor of the Review of Reviews finds several incidents in this fall's political situation on which to comment with effect in "The Progress of the World" for October; the part played by the liquor question in the New York campaign is very clearly described. The present difficulties of the United States Treasury and the bearings thereof on national politics are discussed. The opening of the Atlanta exposition and the recent patriotic gatherings at Louisville and Chickamauga, the international yacht racing fiasco, the building of American battleships and Lord Wolseley's appointment as commander-in-chief of the British army are among the topics included in the month's survey. The Madagascar campaign, the massacre of missionaries in China, the Armenian question and progress in South Africa under Cecil Rhodes are matters of international interest which also pass under editorial review. "Religious Journalism and Journalists" is the title of an attractive illustrated article by Mr. George P. Morris; Sir Frederick Frankland, Bart., contributes an interesting account of "Matabeleland under the British South African Company." Percy R. Meggy, secretary to the New South Wales civil service inquiry commission, throws light from the antipodes on some of the difficulties of the ever present civil service problem, and the attorney general of Manitoba makes an important statement concerning the school question that is agitating that province.

The October number of the North American Review opens with a timely article on "The Atlanta Exposition," by the governor of Georgia. Dr. Henry Smith Williams contributes a vigorous paper on "Politics and the Insane," while in "Birds in Flight and the Flying Machine" Hiram S. Maxim writes hopefully of the possibility that a machine will yet be made whereby the flight of man will become an assured fact. "Some Problems of the Age" are considered by Very Rev. F. W. Farrar, the newly installed Dean of Canterbury, and in "The Microbe as a Social Leveller" Dr. Cyrus Edson presents some practical facts in an interesting manner. Under the head of "A Study in Wives" four ideal types of women are portrayed by four well-known authors of different nationalities, Max O'Rell describing "The French Wife," Grant Allen "The English Wife," Karl Blind "The German Wife," and H. H. Boyesen "The Scandinavian Wife." Hon. Edmund G. Ross, ex-governor of New Mexico, deals with the "Future of the Arid West," and in a piquant article on "English Women in Political Campaigns" Lady Jeune recounts the labors of the Primrose League in the recent election in England. The liquor question is discussed by Drs. Waldo and Walsh in an article entitled "Environment and Drink," and by Rev. F. C. Iglehart, D. D., in "The Saloon and the Sabbath." Albert D. Vandam's tenth instalment of the "Personal History of the Second Empire" dwells on "The Causes of the Mexican War," and Major General Nelson A. Miles, in a chapter from his forthcoming book, "From New England to the Golden Gate," gives a descriptive paper upon "Hunting Large Game." An able and valuable contribution by Rev. Professor W. Garden Blaikie is devoted to a consideration of the question, "Is Socialism Advancing in England?" Other topics dealt with are: "Our Need of Stringent Shipping Laws," by Frank Rotherham; "The American Note," by Rev. J. H. Ward; "Harnessing the Tides," by George E. Walsh, and "Rural Free Mail Delivery," by John M. Stahl.

NOTABLE ANNIVERSARIES.

1849—Edgar Allan Poe, erratic poet and author, died in Baltimore; born 1809.

1865—Negro outbreak on the island of Jamaica.

1871—Beginning of the great Chicago fire.

1891—Charles Stewart Parnell, leader of the Irish home rule movement, died at Brighton, England.

1892—Crespo's revolution in Venezuela.

1893—The American yacht Vigilant won the first race in the contest for the America's cup over the English Valkyrie by 5 minutes, 48 seconds.

1894—Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes died in Boston; born in Cambridge 1809. Andrew G. Curtin, war governor of Pennsylvania, died at Bellefonte; born 1817.

Mrs. Wiggin's new book, "The Village Watch Tower," has a charming dedication, from which is taken this paragraph: "Dear old apple-tree, under whose gnarled branches these stories were written, to you I dedicate the book. My head was so close to you, who can tell from whence the thoughts came? I only know that when all the other trees in the orchard were barren, there were always stories to be found under your branches, and so it is our joint book, dear apple-tree. Your pink blossoms have fallen on the page as I wrote, your ruddy fruit has dropped into my lap; the sunshine streamed through your leaves and tipped my pencil with gold." Pink apple-blossoms seem to have fallen on the printed page, producing a charming effect.

To remove the constipated habit, the only safe treatment is a course of Ayer's Pills, followed by a laxative diet. Most other cathartics do more harm than good, therefore leading physicians recommend Ayer's Pills, especially as a family physic.

SHORTAGE OF FOOD.

caraguans of Middle and Lower Classes Feel Poverty's Pinch.

AUAGUA, Sept. 17.—President Zelaya s issued a decree granting free transportion of corn, beans, rice, plantains and getables over the national railroads in effort to reduce the prevailing high ces in western Nicaragua for all articles food.

The long-continued, unseasonable dry eather has largely decreased the crop, e demand for labor and the wages to all nds of laborers, consequently a majority the lower and middle classes, which nstitute about 60 per cent of the entire pulation of about 350,000 of Nicaragua, e reduced to living in closest economy such wild fruits and berries as they n gather, supplemented by the small uantities of corn, beans, plantains or o they can buy, from day to day, with eir small earnings.

The coffee crops in the districts of volnic formed soils—the largest coffee proucing areas in this country—are not execeted to yield this year over one-half the erage annual production, and will reuire not one-half the usual number of laorers to gather the crop through the ree months when ripening, and then e competition of the unorganized labors will reduce, most probably, the heretore very low prices paid for this work. he season is too dry to clear more lands d plant more coffee trees. Thus the rospects are that the present straitened ondition of the laboring classes will beme more unbearable.

El Pueblo, a government-subsidized ally in Managua, announces the disvery of "trichinia spiralis" in quantities n fresh pork sold in the cities in western caragua. This is not surprising, in ght of the fact that hogs, like buzzards, re permitted as scavengers on the streets nd in many of the houses and yards. El Pueblo cautions the people against the too ree use of hog meat, but it is a warning hat most probably will go unheeded durng the present scarcity and high prices for ll kinds of food in western Nicaragua.

Poor Financiering.

The 400,000 pesos (silver) foreign debt, ettled yesterday by the government, was ontracted early in 1893, during the adinistration of President Sacasa, with a London company named "The Nicaragua Developing company, limited," and was a oan in silver pesos distributed largely and hamefully among some of the members f the national congress of Nicaragua, to be repaid to the lender in gold, with interest at 24 per cent per annum; 25 per cent f the gross receipts of the National raiload and steamboats, and parts of other evenues were pledged to redeem in gold the principal and interest of that loan of silver pesos.

In June, 1893, the Sacasa government was dethroned, and the subsequent internal and external wars prevented the payment of but a part of the loan. The present government of Nicaragua ignored the terms of payment of the debt and the rate of interest, and recently Secretary of Treasury Callejas declared:

"The government having received silver will pay in silver, and as follows: 50,000 pesos in coffee bonds of the next crop (1895) and 15,000 pesos monthly until total payment of the balance due, with 15 per cent per annum interest on account from the beginning of the debt, commissions to be paid on such sums as have been collected by the Nicaragua Developing company, limited."

These terms were agreed to yesterday by both parties. The "coffee bonds" are really permits to export, and are an export tax of 2 cents (silver) a pound on coffee, which will be paid to the holder of the bonds before the coffee can be exported.

Looking Toward Reform.

Senor Callejas, minister of treasury and acting minister of interior, is to go to Bluefields, Rama and other Atlantic ports of Nicaragua, with full power to make such official changes, and issue and enforce, if he can, such orders and decrees as he may find necessary in an effort to try and regulate satisfactorily to the government of Nicaragua the political, financial and judicial systems there.

In other words, it will be an attempt to cause to the people on the eastern coast of Nicaragua—who all have grown up under a civil and criminal jurisprudence, copied or modeled by one of their former "supreme court judges," Judge Jackson (previously one of the late showman Barnum's best clowns), from the New York state code—to adopt and comply with the unimproved, commingled old Spanish laws and Napoleonic code that have been used, abused and evaded, as conditions suited, by lethargic western Nicaraguans for many years past.

Indian Vengeance.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 7.—J. W. Wilson, who lives near Jackson's Hole, reports that Captain Smith, who precipitated the Indian troubles in the Jackson's Hole country last July, and two other white men, were killed by the Indians on Oct. 3 at the lower end of Jackson's Hole, the victims being shot from ambush.

Robbed by Masked Men.

ARCADIA, Fla., Oct. 7.—County Treasurer B. F. Wood was held up by four masked men and was made to open the county safe and turn over to them the contents, which amounted to $6000.

Outflow Continues.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The exports of specie from the port of New York for last week amounted to $326,009 in gold and $681,908 in silver. The imports were: Gold, $36,530; silver, $17,618.

Scared Out of Her Wits.

WEYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 7.—Mrs. M. Clifford Nash of Front street had an experience with a masked burglar at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. She awoke to find a masked man standing over her with a revolver pointed at her head. Her husband was asleep beside her, and the burglar reached under his pillow and took out a pocketbook and a bag of silver. The thief had previously entered Mr. Nash's son's room and taken a pocketbook from there. He made his exit from a rear window, and in his haste dropped all his booty, which amounted to about $300, and it was recovered later by Mr. Nash. Mrs. Nash was so badly frightened that she could give no description of the thief.

A Firebug's Confession.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Noel Foster, aged 26 years, was arrested last evening, charged with being the long-looked-for firebug. Foster confessed to having set fire to six business buildings in ward 5. He also admitted having set the fires at his employer's shop on Aug. 12 and 27, and also said he was responsible for the extensive conflagration at Shea's hay and grain storehouse. He gave as his reason for setting the numerous fires because he "liked to see the engines pump." A rough estimate of the damage caused by Foster places it at no less than $80,000.

Looking Toward Uncle Sam.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—J. V. Fuentes, president of the Cuban club of Boston, says: "The revolutionists have formed a government and are now perfecting it before sending out agents to the various countries to secure recognition. We care more for recognition from this country than any other. Let the United States recognize us and in a month things in Cuba will undergo a change that will surprise the world. Politically we belong to Spain, but in every other way we belong to the United States."

A Happy Family.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The Massachusetts Republicans express themselves as well pleased with their state convention, because it was a short convention and without any sensational features. There was no contest over any of the nominations, and only the shadow of opposition, and even that was intended, according to the statement of some of the men who led it, simply as a declaration of the strength of the A. P. A.

Ran Into Open Switch.

WALPOLE, Mass., Oct. 7.—A freight train was wrecked Saturday afternoon near Blackstone Junction. Engineer Lawton and Brakeman Fay were instantly killed. Brakeman Munroe was fatally burned, and Fireman Holden and J. H. Montell, in charge of some horses on the train, were severely injured. The train ran into an open switch leading to a turn-table. Eight freight cars were completely demolished.

Sympathy For Those at Home.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At a mass meeting of Armenians of Boston and vicinity yesterday, resolutions were passed expressing sympathy for the compatriots now suffering in Turkish dungeons, and advocating revolutionary measures as the only way that the Armenian nation can be saved from extermination, as well as calling the attention of the civilized world to the recent uprising in Constantinople.

Laid Him Out.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 7.—Undertaker Colbath, while on his way to Scotland Hill on business early yesterday morning, was held up in a lonely place by a highwayman, who demanded his money. Colbath got out of his wagon, and, while pretending to feel in his pockets for money, made a quick move and knocked the man senseless, and then drove away.

Boy Killed by Boy.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Oct. 7.—J. F. Cashman, a 12-year-old boy, died here yesterday from the effects of a stone thrown by a newsboy named Joseph Townsend, 16 years old. Cashman was teasing the newsboy by calling him names, and Townsend threw a stone at Cashman, hitting him on the head, fracturing his skull.

Burns Out on Bail.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 7.—Michael Burns was released Saturday on $5500 bail. Burns was found guilty of an assault with intent to kill on his brother-in-law, H. R. Hopkins, last June. His case will be carried by counsel to the law court, on exceptions.

Suicide by Drowning.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 7.—The body of a man about 65 years old was found floating in the Merrimac river yesterday. In one pocket was 45 cents, while the others were filled with stones. There were no evidence of foul play.

Schooner Sunk.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Oct. 7.—A three-masted schooner, supposed to be the Nellie S. Pickering, is sunk in Muskeget channel, near Skiff island. The sails are all furled and there are no signs of men in the rigging.

Italians in Fatal Quarrel.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 7.—In a fight last night between Jerry and Luigi Magoni and Dan L'Dessassia, Luigi was stabbed just under the heart by Dessassia and will probably die. The other Italians were arrested.

Firemen Kept Busy.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Three fires broke out here yesterday, two of which were of incendiary origin. The Munroe paper mill, Hale's bobbin shop and a lot of cheaper structures were damaged. Loss is about $7000.

Drew Out Nearly $14,000.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 7.—The order giving permission to the Nashua Savings bank to pay 20 per cent of the deposits went into effect Saturday. Up to the close of banking hours $13,830 had been withdrawn.

Going Back to Work.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Oct. 7.—President Cleveland will probably leave Gray Gables for Washington some time this week. Mrs. Cleveland and her daughters will remain for a week or two longer.

After a Record.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—M. G. Coburn is making an attempt to break the bicycle record between this city and New York, via Worcester and Springfield. W. U. Swan gave the starting signal at midnight.

Took French Leave.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 7.—Late yesterday afternoon Albert A. Hodson and Nelson Bacon, two boys confined at the Cape Elizabeth reform school for larceny, escaped from that institution.

Was Tippecanoe's Friend.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—General Samuel F. Carey has been selected as orator at the unveiling of the Harrison monument in Garfield park, in this city, next December. General Carey was a warm personal friend of the hero of Tippecanoe, and stumped the country for him in both of his memorable presidential campaigns.

Not Expecting Trouble.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Oct. 7.—Statements to the effect that the revenue of this colony during the last quarter was reduced 30 per cent and that financial trouble is anticipated are officially denied.

Bad For Mariners.

HALIFAX, Oct. 7.—A heavy northwesterly gale prevailed here. It is reported to be very rough along the coast.

BEFORE THE ARTILLERY.

Chaplain Porter Preaches His Annual Sermon.

The annual sermon before the Newport Artillery was preached by the chaplain, Rev. Emery H. Porter, at the armory on Clarke street yesterday afternoon. The company turned out with full ranks, and many former members and friends helped swell the audience to the entire seating capacity of the armory. Among those present were Governor and Mrs. Lippitt. The opening services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Porter, assisted by Rev. E. C. Bass, D.D., and included the singing of the following hymns by the congregation: "Rock of Ages," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Miss Maude Simpson accompanied on the organ and Mr. Thomas Simpson on the flute. The singing was of the hearty, whole-souled nature which characterizes gatherings in which male voices predominate.

Chaplain Porter took his text from Ecclesiastics xii: 1: "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth." These are the words, if not of Solomon himself, of one who, like Solomon, had seen the world and its pleasures, who had had everything at his command and had given himself without restraint to the pursuit of pleasure. His verdict at the end of life was "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity," certainly a cheerless creed. He was a man of the world who had seen life, its pleasures and its gains, and at its end declared that all is vanity. He had been a cynic, a skeptic, but was now a disciple of God. He saw in youth the splendid possibilities of power, if life is lived with God.

To remember the creator is to have imprinted upon the mind the fact that we have a creator; the idea of a superintending power which made us and gives us life; a realization of divine presence; having God always in mind. We too often act as if we were self-made or having been made had the shaping of our destiny in our own hands. To remember Him is to see in Him a shaping and constructive influence. Solomon would have such a remembrance accompanied with joy. Youthful jest and wholesome religion can go together. We can use the world and everything in it as the gift of God, to be used for his greater glory. We are not our own to do with our life as we will. Every moment's breath is every moment's gift. The thought of such an ownership is a safeguard of a life of virtue. Many men are ashamed of religion in its outward forms, because they do not wish to like to confess a dependence. They believe in God in a general way, but make no outward show. The thought of God as the moral governor of the world and of each human life is what remembering our creator means.

In the days of thy youth, remember God. These are our best days, best for everything. The morning hours of our life are the freshest. There is so much that is delightful in the world, so many demands upon our time and labors, that God is too often forgotten. A strong young man, keeping the thought of God with him, ever on the alert for all that is good, can do much for God. There is a temptation to live in the present, just to drift, without thought for the morrow; to have no religious notions, to do no religious thing; to put this off to middle life; to think that religion has little to do with a growing life. It is a fearfully anxious period, that between childhood and manhood; fatal to many, dangerous to all. Conversion, a turning about, is less likely to come as life advances. Remembering our creator is conversion. Young men, do not give only the dregs of your lives to your maker; give him the best that you have. Choose God in the vigor of your life. It is not weak and childish to know God and to honor Him and trust in His promises. The idle life, the thoughtless life, the dissolute life, is not for you, but the useful, the blessed and the eternal life is yours if you take it. It is the crown of manhood to have worthy ideas in early years, and to hold fast to them until the end. Live your life with God. He is your safeguard in trouble and trial. All of us may make the world better and richer for our having been in it. The one secret of success is obedience to the maxim of this man of the world, who in his best estate was a man of God: "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth."

Mr. Porter closed with an urgent personal address to the company. "We are all," he said, "young enough to have something yet to do for ourselves, our city, our country. Life is full of opportunities. Let us never grow old; let us ever be young in the endeavor to help others. The years are crowded with opportunities to make the world better; let us not let them pass by, but make the most of them."

The service was concluded with the singing of "Abide with Me," and the benediction by Rev. Dr. Bass.

THE MANUFACTURE OF SMOKELESS POWDER.

Washington appears to have just discovered some very stale information regarding smokeless powder and its manufacture for use in the navy. The facts in the case are that smokeless powder has been manufactured at the Torpedo Station for more than a year, and a new manufactory there has been in operation since mid-summer. Some new machinery has yet to be added, but this will simply duplicate that already in operation.

A powder of commercial value has already been made and issued to ships of the North Atlantic squadron for use in secondary batteries; that is, one and six-pounder rapid-fire guns. Daily tests are still in progress at the Station, more especially for determining the size and form of the grain for guns of large calibre, up to thirteen inches. The work of perfecting the powder for the small arms is also in progress, as are tests to determine the life of the powder.

It is true that nitro-glycerine powders, as manufactured abroad, do produce an enormous pressure which is injurious to the guns, and give a comparatively low velocity. The claim of the United States officials is that they have secured a powder which does not have this dangerous pressure, and yet gives a velocity of from 2,470 to 2,490 feet per second. The base of this powder is gun cotton, and it does not contain nitro-glycerine.

When the government is ready to have smokeless powder used generally in the navy, the plant at the Torpedo Station, without further additions then at present prepared for, when the machines now ordered are delivered, will be capable of supplying the demand for small arms and rapid-fire guns in time of peace, but the making of the powders for the larger guns will in all probability be let out to contractors. The Torpedo Station plant is more especially experimental, though having the facilities for service production.

Take the Wickford Line for New York and avoid the rush on the sound steamers. Leave Commercial wharf, opposite Postoffice, 7:10, 10 A. M.; 1:30, 4:30 7:30, 11:15 P. M.

SATURDAY'S BASE BALL GAME.

Saturday afternoon at Freebody Park the base ball nine of the Townsend Industrial School annihilated the aggregation which represented the First Middle class of the Rogers High School. The Townsend nine included Clarke, who has done good work in the box, and was altogether too much for the high school boys, Fullerton and Albro of last season's high school team, Garnett and young King, and very easily outclassed the other side, for which Brownell, last year's third baseman, pitched eight innings, and was fairly effective. Lewis caught very well, Bartley, the old-time umpire, ambled about in his old position at short, and stopped one hot one; the right fielder distinguished himself by his activity, and with practice promises to put at least some life into the game. He has much to learn, however.

In the grand stand there were four girls from the high and two from the industrial school. They looked a trifle lonesome but they didn't feel so, for each applauded her school nine with a vigor unseen in previous games, and every one had a pencil and paper and kept a score. The sides were as follows:

Townsend Industrial School—Clarke, p.; Fullerton, 1b.; Garnett, c.; King, 2b.; Draper, s. s.; Sherman l. f.; Lawton, 3b.; Weaver, r. f.; Albro, c. f.

First Middle—Brownell, p., c.; Bartley, s. s.; Carry, 3b., p.; Lewis, c., 3b.; Sherman, 2b.; Grant, l. f., Harvey, 1b.; Mahoney, c. f.; Marvel, r. f.

Umpires—King and Hathaway.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Townsend	3	4	0	1	5	1	0	8	2	—24
First Middle	1	0	0	3	0	0	0	1	0	— 5

The fence about the ball grounds has been placarded with signs against trespassing.

The only base ball event scheduled for this week is the meeting of the Wine Clerks and Si Weibl's aggregation on the ball grounds Thursday. Adam Trager has taken the management of the wine clerks and has his eye out for a good second baseman. Both captains agree that there will be a barrel of fun.

POLICE NOTES.

Two lost children were reported at the Station yesterday, and were found after a few hours' search.

John A. Shaw was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness and was fined $2 and costs. He was unable to settle and went to jail.

John Parker of schooner Alice E. Jordan was charged with assaulting Daniel Sampson of schooner Conobis. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued until Tuesday.

William Dailey and Michael Cooney have each been fined $2 and costs for revelling.

Edward Henry, alias "Rammy Butts," is in trouble again. It was only Friday that his friends were able to pay about $18, the fine and costs incident to his incarceration on a charge of assaulting Officer Shea. He had previously appealed the case, and it was set down for trial at the November term of the supreme court. Saturday night he was arrested for drunkenness by Officer Crane. Just as he was being placed in the cell he kicked the officer twice in the groin. The officer was seriously injured and had to be excused from duty. He pleaded guilty Sunday and was sentenced to the Providence county jail for thirty days and to pay costs.

PROBATE COURT.

In the probate court this morning the will of Jeremiah J. Lynch was proved and letters testamentary were granted to Ellen M. Lynch, the administrator's final account with the estate of Karl Faerber was allowed and ordered recorded, and the administrator's final account with the estates of Benjamin M. Anthony and Henry B. Burdick, and the petitions for administration on the estates of John Johnson and Charles L. Tripp were continued to October 28, according to law.

THE GREATER TWELVE TEMPTATIONS.

C. H. Yale's spectacular play, "The Greater Twelve Temptations," will be presented at the Opera House this evening, with new and elaborate special scenery, new ballets, ingenious stage mechanisms and scenic effects, catchy songs and dances, and gymnastic feats. One of the features of the performance will be an illustration of the "coming woman," giving in ballet form what may be expected to be seen unless radical changes soon make their appearance. The entire corps de ballet is utilized for the suggestion. In it there are platoons of four hunting girls, four bicycle girls, four riding girls, four fishing girls and four "coming women," the latter of whom sing of their triumphs, which is followed by five "young men" who relate in verse the woes of their lost supremacy.

"A THOROUGHBRED."

The New York Herald speaks of "A Thoroughbred," which is to be presented at the Opera House tomorrow evening, as follows: "This successful London comedy was presented to a large audience at the Bijou last night, and scored an emphatic success. It is difficult to decide whether the piece is a comedy or a drama. Many of the situations are intensely dramatic and many extremely humorous. We have seldom seen an audience "roar" the way it did at the side-splitting love scene in the last act. That "quiet little game of poker" will also be remembered. The company was adequate to the requirements of the different roles. Mr. Wilson, as Willie Green, and Kate Johnson, as Mrs. Strongmind, made hits.
